

You already know that wearing fur is outdated and cruel, so why not ease your conscience and put old furs to good use?

Cuddle Coats

Tax-deductible for you, donated old furs offer comfort for orphaned animals while they prepare for life in the wild.

This program is a partnership with Wildlife Rehabilitation and Release.

Coats can either be dropped off in the donation box at the Animal Rights Coalition 317 West 48th Street Minneapolis, MN 55419 or mailed in.

Any fur is accepted, including coats, trims, muffs, and fur-lined gloves.

Donate to Cuddle Coats and help save a life!

Photo Courtesy of © Jeff R. Clow

Did You Know...?

There are currently no laws to protect animals on fur farms.

Steel Jaw Leg Hold Traps Kill and maim dogs, cats, raptors and numerous "non-target" species who are discarded and labeled "trash" animals by the fur industry.

Animals can suffer for days in traps and frequently chew their own legs off to try to escape.

The thick linings on furs coats conceal the seams of all of the skins used to make the garment. For example, on average it takes 55 wild minks to make a full length fur coat.

Animals are killed by poisoning, electrocution, or having their necks broken.

Sometimes the animals don't die immediately and are skinned while still alive and conscience.

Even if you don't have a fur to donate, you can still support our work to help animals by becoming a member of our non-profit animal advocacy group.

Visit us online at www.AnimalRightsCoalition.com or call us at 612-822-6161

for more information.

Coats can either be dropped off at our office or mailed to us. All fur is accepted, including coats, trims, muffs, stoles, and fur-lined gloves.